

Ken Cunningham
Administrator
Information Technology Division

Ken Cunningham serves as Administrator for Information Technology. He has a B.S. Degree from Iowa State University and is currently enrolled in the MBA program at Tennessee Tech University, with his core studies in management information systems. Ken began his career at the state working as a project manager contract employee at the Department of Environment and Conservation in 2000 and became the Assistant Director of the Information Systems Division in March 2003. In June 2004, he transferred to the Department of Labor and Workforce Development where he managed the Help Desk staff and began the agency computer training program. In November 2004, Ken was assigned management over the IT software development staff and was appointed to the IT Administrator position in September 2005.

Ken has an A+ computer certification and is a Microsoft Certified Professional; he served four years in the United States Air Force in the information systems career field. Ken is a native of Iowa, but has lived in Nashville since 1989 with his wife, Daisy, and four children.